

Five and Dime General Store – Santa Fe, NM

When you order a Frito pie at the Five and Dime, mild and meaty red chile is ladled into an open "Big Grab" bag of corn chips, then shredded cheese is spread across the top. The chili is hot enough so the cheese begins to melt, and by the time you plant a plastic fork, it's molten. Chopped onions and jalapeno chips are offered as a garnish.

88% Approval Rating (9 votes)

Overall: Worth planning a day around

Must Eats

Fritos Pie ($4.00)

Written Reviews

Michael Stern

"The Five and Dime is located on San Francisco Street on the Plaza where the old Woolworth's used to be. It still carries a variety of souvenirs and household goods, and its lunch counter is still a source of definitive Fritos Pie. It serves it the old-fashioned way: ..." [\[Read More\]](#)

"When you order a Fritos pie, it is assembled then set in this grooved chile-shaped chip-bag holder, allowing you the use of both hands to pay the bill ($3.75 plus tax) before you pick it up."

Michael Stern